RUNNING AFTER FALSE GODS IN USE OF RADIUM

President-Elect of American Medical Association Denounces "New Fad."

CANCER SPECIALIST RIDICULES "CURES"

Says Disease Is Only Made Worse by Use of Radium and X-Ray.

my limited experience with ra-"In my limited experience with radium I have noticed that every case has been made worse. I believe more in the X-ray than in radium, and what has been accomplished by radium has been done better by the X-ray. We are running after false gods when we give up surgical operation for these new fads. And, in my opinion, these new fads will not last much longer. The German specialists have con-The German specialists have con-demned the use of radium as being of no value, and, indeed, frequently harmful. So, gentlemen, let us hear no more of radium."

In this fervid denunciation of the radium treatment Dr. Rodman figuratively crossed raplers with Dr. Howard A. Kelly, the famous Johns Hopkins specialist, who on Monday night swayed his audience with the hope that in radium would be found an ultimate cure for cancer. Dr. Kelly was not in the audience last night, having returned to Baltimore, it was said, yesterday morning. It was evident that the majority of the professional men who heard Dr. Rodman last night believed with him, for his appeal to surrender the trail of the "false gods" was vociferously applauded.

In the beginning, after he had paid a tribute to Dr. McGuire and his fam-ous father, Dr. Hunter McGuire, Dr. Rodman said that between 12,000 and Rodman said that between 12,000 and 15,000 men and women die annually from this deceitfully-terrible disease. If only the disease were taken in time, when only suspicion was existent, he said that oure could be effected. But in the majority—and it is a tremendous majority—of cases the patient comes too late, or diagnosis is too late, and allow dying ensues. A careful study from this deceitfully-terrible disease. If only the disease were taken in time, when only suspicion was existent, he said that our could be effected. But in the majority—of cases the patient comes too late, and slow dying ensues. A careful study of precancerous conditions should be made, he said, and all measures of early diagnosis and precaution should be carried to the ultima thule of safety.

DISEASE IS LOCAL, AND

NOT CONSTITUTIONAL
The speaker said that the disease is strictly local, as was announced and made known in 1867, and he was painfully surprised that some of the medical profession still regard it as a constitutional disease.

"That it is strictly local," he declared, "is shown by every evidence, clinicai, surgical and indicative. Part of the vidence that it is primarily a local ilicase is that it it is not painfull in the local is that it it is not painfull in the local is that it it is not painfull in the local is that it it is not painfull in the local is that it it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local is that it is not painfull in the local in the local is that it is not painfull in the local in the local in the local interval inte

"That it is strictly local," he declared, "is shown by every evidence, clinical, surgical and indicative. Part of the evidence that it is primarily a local disease is that it is not painful in the first year or eighteen months. It is only when adhesion begins and secondary ulcerations appear that the disease is painful. In the beginning it

PATIENTS AFTER THREE YEARS ASSURED OF SAFETY

In referring to the success of surgi-cal removal, as in his own experience and in that of others, Dr. Rodman said that if, the patient passed the limit of three years without recurrence of cancer he could be reusonably assur-ed of continued safety. NOTHING NOBLE IN WAR

WASHINGTON, November 11.—President Wilson, speaking to-day at the unveiling of a statue to General Philip Kearney, at Arlington, declared that there is nothing noble and admirable in war, but there is something very noble and admirable occasionally in the causes for which war is undertaken, and there is something very noble and admirable in some of the characters which war develops.

"If a man's character can go through

"If a man's character can go through fire and come out resplendent," said the President, "then you know that it is of the true quality of the best human stuff.

man stuff."

Mr. Wilson said General Kearney typified the best kind of leader produced by the United States, adding that "there has been many another man who stood alongside of him with the same qualities and the same distinction of service."

Speaking of the habit of General Kearney's soldiers of affectionately calling him "Phil," the President said he had always been sorry that he did not have a "front name which admitted of shortening."

Governor Gielder, of New Jersey, also delivered an address.

NO CASÉ MADE OUT

Innes and Wife Will Be Dismissed for Lack of Evidence.

Denouncing the use of both radium and the X-ray as treatment for cancer, pr. William L. Redman, famous care specialist of Philadelphia, and president-elect of the American Medical Association, declared last night at the public session of the Southern Medical Association that both were more harmful than beneficial or innocuous, and, with tremendous emphasis on his words, said that no one had the right to subject a patient with cancer of the breast to any treatment but that of surgical removal.

"The proper treatment," said Dr. Rodman, "is that of early removal. We have heard too much of the X-ray and fradium, nelther of which has ever been of demonstrable worth. I have never in my experience seen a case of cancer cured by X-ray or radium.
